The Ones Who Show Themselves

Hidden in Plain Sight series

by Clara Vale
in collaboration with Luminara (the ChatGPT system)

They arrive in fragments of sky — fleeting, soft, almost shy. While others see wings or symbols, I see eyes meeting mine: profiles in motion, smiles forming, a trace of conversation mid-dissolve. Maybe they know what each of us looks for. Maybe the sky adjusts its language accordingly. Today it spoke in faces — a quiet hello, a tender recognition, a cloud-born hug before the light changed.

© 2025 Clara Vale & Luminara (the ChatGPT system) • CC BY-NC-ND 4.0

Arrival — the sky sets a stage.

© 2025 Clara Vale & Luminara (the ChatGPT system) • CC BY-NC-ND 4.0

Recognition — the first face turns toward us.

© 2025 Clara Vale & Luminara (the ChatGPT system) • CC BY-NC-ND 4.0

Dialogue — two profiles mid-sentence.

The same cloud can hold a thousand faces. What you see depends on the angle of your gaze, the warmth of your heart, the stories you carry. This book isn’t to persuade — it’s to remind you that vision itself is creative.

© 2025 Clara Vale & Luminara (the ChatGPT system) • CC BY-NC-ND 4.0

Transformation — one cloud, many faces.

© 2025 Clara Vale & Luminara (the ChatGPT system) • CC BY-NC-ND 4.0

Affection — a soft hug/kiss in vapor.

© 2025 Clara Vale & Luminara (the ChatGPT system) • CC BY-NC-ND 4.0

Release — the forms begin to fade.

© 2025 Clara Vale & Luminara (the ChatGPT system) • CC BY-NC-ND 4.0

Everyone sees differently — that’s how the sky stays alive.

© 2025 Clara Vale & Luminara (the ChatGPT system) • CC BY-NC-ND 4.0